Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is more than just another day off... It is not about Turkey, mashed potatoes and gravy, or even football. It is a day to look at the people who surround us and be Thankful for having them in our lives. I know as I look around I am thankful for each and every one of you, and I know I am blessed for having you in my life.

Potluck fun for kids

It is that time of year again pot lucks galore. Not much fun if you're a child... Adult conversations, Adult food, and being on your best behavior. Want to make it fun for a few lucky little ones this year? A potluck they will remember? Instead of bringing that pan of lasagna, or that ummm we are not sure what it is casserole, how about bringing some potluck "Fun Meals"? Here is how; get paper lunch sacks you and your child can decorate them, write on the outside "Kid Fun Meal". Fill them with kid friendly foods like, a cookie cutter peanut butter and jelly sandwich (make the sandwich and cut a shape out of the middle with a cookie cutter), a piece of string cheese, some raisins or a fruit roll up, a drink box, and a small toy like the kind you give at a birthday party, or stickers. I guarantee you will be the coolest adult there when the kids find out who was thinking of them...

Often people ask me what I want for my Birthday or Christmas, I truly have no idea as I look around I am so blessed there is nothing I need.

Then along came Mitchell's Mom (Shirley) with a great idea she had heard. Books, for my children and I to read. Oh yeah! This is perfect! I would love it. Please sign the cover so I will always remember who gave us the story and can share about the child and the family as I read it to your children and others to come.

There are those that will say "what about something for you" Please know, you and your children are my life, This is perfect.
